Description

Picture this: exposed wooden beams catching warm Caribbean light. Blue accent doors that pop against cream walls. A private pool where palm shadows dance across crystal water. Villa Dany sits in Casa de Campo's Cajuales neighborhood, where tropical gardens meet thoughtful design.

Five bedrooms spread across the property. Two master suites with king beds. Two rooms with dual queens. One cozy single that works as a kids' room or private office. Six bathrooms mean no morning traffic jams. The hexagonal tiles and marble countertops catch your eye, but it's the space that matters, room for twelve people to actually relax.

The open living area flows onto a covered terrace. Your private pool sits steps away, with a jacuzzi tucked alongside. The tropical garden creates natural privacy. Inside, the kitchen handles everything from morning coffee to full dinner parties. Air conditioning throughout. WiFi that actually works.

Your housekeeper and cook arrive each morning. They know the property, know the area, know what works. Casa de Campo's golf courses, marina, restaurants, and beach club become your playground. The resort fee covers access to everything: pools, beach loungers, health services.

The location hits different. You're in the resort but have your own space. Close enough to walk places. Far enough for real quiet.

Rates run $2,500-$4,500 per night depending on season. Three-night minimum stays, extending to ten nights during peak holiday periods.
